What if we could use capacitors for all of our energy storage?

Many new supercapacitors are made by combining carbon and nickel.

Some plants can accumulate high levels of nickel in their leaves. They already have the carbon and nickel we need!